LEXINGTON, MO.

The bramble wrestled with the weed Upon the lowly mound, The simple head-board rudely writ, Had rotted to the ground; I raised it with a reverend hand, From dust its words to clear; but Time had blotted all but these—
"A Georgia Folunteer,"

I saw the toad and scaly snake
From tangled coverts start,
And hide themselves among the week
Above the dead man's heart;
But undisturbed, in sleep protound,
Unheeding there he lay—
His coffin but the mountain soil,
His shroud, Confed'rate gray.

I heard the Shenandoah roll
Along the vale below,
I saw the Alleghanies rise
Toward the realms of anow;
The "Valley Campaign" rose to mind—
lis leader's name—and then,
I knew the sleeper had been one
Of Stonewall Jackson's men.

Yet whence he came, what lips shall say?
What tongues will ever tell,
What desolates hearths and hearts
Have been because be fell?
What sad-eyed maiden braids her hair,
Her hair which he held dear?
One lock of which perchance lies with
The Georgia Volunteer.

What mother with long-watching eyes,
And white lrps cold and dumb.
Waits with appalling patience logHer darling boy to come?
Her boy I whose mountain grave swells up.
But one of many a scar.
Cut on the face of our fair land
By gory-handed War?

What fights be fought, what wo dnow he Are all unknown to tame;
Remember, on his lonely grave
There is not e'en a name!
That he fought well, and brayely too,
And held his country dear,
We know—else he had gaver been
"A Georgia Volunteec."

He sleeps—what need to question now
If he were wrong or right,
He knows ere this whose cause is just
In God the Father's sight.
He wields no warlike weapons now,
Returns no foeman's thrust—
Who, but a toward, would revile
An honest soldier's dust?

Roll, Shenandoah, proudly roll
Adown the rocky glen;
Above thre lies the grave of one
Of Stonewall Jackson's mer,!
Beneath the cedar and the plac,
In solitude austere,
Unknown, unnamed, forgotten lies
"A Georgia Folunte r."

THE LID'AT BRIGADE.

Truth About the Famous Charge

"Into the Mouth of Hell." At last we have a historical blunder gracefully corrected and a bandsome defense of a brave soldier, whose name has been under a cloud. It has been popularly decided that Captain Louis Nolan, of Lord Rag. lan's staff, being an impetuous sol.

Then the Russian betteries are red. sition of the forces, says :

As it was, matters stood thus ed on at a when Nolan left Ragland, bearing of death. the "fourth order." The Russians were clustered on two hills, the English and French cavalry stood with Nolan. looking on, Lucan was in his usual nervous, irritable state, when the gallop of a horse was heard. A tall, slender young officer, with a trim days ago a man named Inge quarreled with his son about some trivial matter, forms and black most scheme. figure and black mustache, was com-face full of joy and eagerness.

An audible murmur went through the ranks.

"Orders come! Noisn's the boy that'll show us the way to move." For Nolan was well-known and universally beloved.

In another moment he had dashed up and saluted; then handed his etter to Lord Lucan. The cavalry General tore it open with the nervous haste characteristic of every movement of his lordship. When he read it over, his countenance changed. Then his lordship broke out, something in this style :

"Why, good heavens, sir, what can he mean? With the little force at our command we can barely hold our own, much less advance. It is perfectly suicidal. How can we advance? Nolan's eye began te blaze. He had just come from the high ground whence the whole Russian position could be seen at a glance. Knowing that his order contemplated the doubling back of the Russian columns and saving the guns in the redoubts, he was impatient of the pragmatical objection of this captious old man.

In a stern, distinct tone he spoke to Lord Lucan: "Lord Ragian's orders are that the cavalry should attack immediately." "Attack, sir?" cried Lucan, angrily. "Attack what? What guns, CINCINNATI, Nolan threw his head back indignantly, and pointed to the Causeway Ridge, where the Russians were hastily at work trying to haul away the captured guns. The group was standing at the right of the entrance Pallman Sleeping Cars & Night Cars on all Trains

"There, my Lord, is your enemy," he said, "and there are your guns." The Captain forgot that he was talking to an excited and impracticable man. Wrong-headed Lucan chose to fancy that he pointed to the end of the valley, and with all the obstinacy of his nature kept to the ST. LOUIS TO CHICAGO

"Very well, sir, very well," he said angrily. "The order shall be obeyed. I wash my hands of it." He wheeled his horse and trotted off to where Cardigan sat in front of

"I can't help it," said Lucan, snappishly; "it is Lord Raglan's positive order that the light brigade is to attack the enemy. We have no choice but to obey." Then Cardigan bowed his head.

"Very well, my Lord," was all be said. Then turning to bie staff, "The brigade will advance," he said,

The erect gentleman was as slender in figure, as alert in gesture as a boy of twenty, and yet that man was fifty seven years old and the Earl of Cr.rdigan himselt. But hardly had they started when Nolan uttered a cry of astonishment "Good God! are the fools going to charge down the valley?" he shout-Then, setting spurs to his horse, he dashed out of his place and gal-loped madly across the front, waving his sword. "Where are you going, my lord?" he shouted. "That is not Lord Raglan's order! Change front to the right. This way! This way! The batteries on the ridge!"

Lord Cardigan was as hot tempered in his way as Lord Lucan. The audacity of an officer presuming to cross his front was enough. For that officer to address his brigade was an additional insult. He spoke G.C.ALEXANDER not a word, but pointed grimly for-ward with his sword. Nolan's words were lost in the thunder of

Then the Russian batteries opened dier, purposely misconstrued the actual meaning of an order which he There was a flash, a boom, and a tual meaning of an order which he carried into an authorization of the senseless sacrifice of the Light Brigade, and that his only excuse was that he was the first man killed in the charge. Launce Poyntz, in the Galaxy, after reviewing the topography of the battle field and the position of the forces, says:

There was a flash, a boom, and a second flash in the air, a little cloud of white smoke, and a loud spang! as the first shell burst in the faces of the trotting line. Poor Nolan threw up his arms with a fearful shriek, and fell back in his saddle, stone dead, struck through the heart. Chief against the impudent fault-finding of Lucan, he felt happy. His beloved cavairy was to be launched at last on this glorious mission against the Causeway Ridge, and already D'Allonville was preparing to assault the other flank of the Russians.

Who can wonder that the enthusiastic Nolan told Morris that he was going to see the brigade through the charge? It was his privilege to do so, and his heart beat high with he pe. Little did he know of the extent of pig-headed stupidity natural to two members of the Englis' a restocracy who respectively commanded and led that charge.

A number of persons in Lafayette, as well as in all the counties of Missouri, are using the Weed, and in every case it has given the most perfect satisfaction. Its great advantage lies in the fact that it is simple, but little machinery about it—(the great desideratum)—and hence is not so easily thrown out of order, as those which are made up in the complex and complicated form. It has but nine pieces to the whole structure, while others vary from three times to ten times as many, rendering their use
